

2021 Federal Election

SOCIAL MEDIA PACKAGE

The 2021 Federal Election is fast approaching. We need government support and public policy to effectively address Fetal Alcohol Spectrum Disorder (FASD) in Canada.

But FASD has not been an issue that our candidates have focused on during their campaigns. We want to get people talking about FASD and show our electoral candidates that this is an issue Canadians care about.

This is something that we cannot do alone. We encourage you, as FASD ambassadors and advocates, to help us get FASD on the 2021 Federal Election Platform and get support for a National FASD Strategy.

Get social

You can help get FASD on their radar by creating some buzz on your social media channels. Get loud about FASD and the 2021 Federal Election. Here are some ideas to help you get started:

- Share information, including facts and statistics about FASD. You can find up to date information on the Canada FASD Research Network website at www.canfasd.ca
- Share your stories. Show voters and candidates that FASD is more than a number. Tell your followers why FASD is such an important issue and why it needs to be on our radar this election.
- Encourage your followers to share their own stories using the hashtags #NationalFASDStrategy #Elxn44 and #CdnPol
- Connect with your candidates to start a conversation about FASD. You can connect over social media, at events, over email, or through mail.
- Ask questions of your candidates and political parties to determine where they stand on this issue. Ask your followers to do the same. Some possible questions include:
 - What will you/your party do to address FASD in Canada?
 - Where does your party stand on supporting people with FASD and their families?
 - How is your party increasing awareness of the harms of alcohol, including FASD?
- Develop a network of support. Share your election activities with other FASD organizations and encourage them to do the same. Engage with other organizations on social media accounts by liking, sharing, and commenting on their content and following their pages.

Social Media Tips

Use hashtags

Political hashtags are a key piece of your social media posts. Using these hashtags in your posts will get your message out to people beyond your current audience. The popular hashtags used for this election are #Elxn44 #ItsOurVote and #CdnPoli. Don't forget to use the hashtag #FASD or #NationalFASDStrategy as well!

Tag candidates

On many platforms you can "tag" political parties or candidates using the @ feature. This makes it more likely that the politician or the person running the account will see your post. Replace candidate1, 2, or 3 in our sample social media posts with the account of your local politician(s).

Bring attention to this movement

Change the profile pictures and/or cover pictures on your social media accounts in the time leading up to the election to bring this issue to your audience's attention. Search "National FASD Strategy" on Facebook to add our National Strategy frame to your profile picture.

LinkedIn, and Twitter give you the option to pin important posts to the top of your feed. Be sure to pin your elections content to make sure it's the first thing your audience sees!

Use visuals

Visual content gets the most attention on social media. Make sure your content includes pictures, graphics, and videos in order to grab your audience's attention. Check out our social media package for some downloadable graphics!

Tag CanFASD in your efforts

Follow Canada FASD Research Network on your social media accounts for more resources and supports about FASD. Find us on Twitter @CanFASD and on Facebook and LinkedIn.

Don't get political

Do not encourage your followers to vote for one party over another. Instead, give them the information they need to make an informed decision regarding FASD in this Federal Election. You cannot make this decision for them.

How to talk about FASD

Remember that talking about FASD can be difficult, and sometimes what we say can do more harm than good. We need to make sure that the language we use is accurate and respectful, and the information we share is up to date with the latest research findings. We've developed some media guides to help you talk about FASD.
