

SUAP Environmental Scan

This environmental scan was conducted to build a list of substance use treatment programs across Canada for the purpose of identifying programs as part of a research study investigating substance use treatment for individuals with FASD. Programs were identified through provincial health websites, the National Native Alcohol and Drug Abuse Program, and through web search engines. Only programs that had publicly available information were included in the scan. Programs are categorized by province, then alphabetically by location, then program name. In total 451 programs were identified. Of these programs, 16 specifically mentioned serving individuals with Fetal Alcohol Spectrum Disorder on their website. For this scan, only programs with substance use treatment as a primary aim were included. In addition, programs that have a primary focus on stabilization or only medical treatment (e.g., detoxification programs, methadone clinics) were not included. This list was created in the Autumn of 2020 and it is likely that treatment programs have closed or opened since then. This list will not be continually updated so please be aware that this list may not be accurate at the time of your viewing.

* Programs that mentioned specific programming for individuals with Fetal Alcohol Spectrum Disorder (FASD) on their website are indicated with a (*).
